

KOCC NEWSLETTER

12 June 2005

By Snatch

Kickball season has officially kicked off with a bang, and I am not above it!! Some special remarks go to Mr. Furious for his 41 second champion keg stand, and to Jared for his 39 second keg stand. THAT IS GODDAMN IMPRESSIVE!!! Also, I would like to make note that Jared was already rocking the schwill award from the night before. Props out to everyone who made Jell-O shots. And to T-Bolt for winning the ponies for being a super great kickball queen.

My own schwill admittance is that I very responsibly took a few pages of notes for material for this newsletter article, and then I got a little tanked somewhere down the line and lost it. Along with my sunglasses. And who knows what else. Getting drunk and losing things seems to be an imminent kickball trend.

Every team out on the field played their best, with or without a killer hangover. New seasons and working together with new teammates is exciting, and sometimes needs a week or two to smooth out. One (and the only) thing that IV and the Red Army have in common is they are the only original teams left over from last summer, and are now playing their third seasons together. Note, however, that IV is the best team ever. Hopefully Parkview will show up and show some fun and wild kickball spirit against them this week!

The most noticeable difference on the field this season is that there are two games going on simultaneously on two different fields, so the quantity of people not playing and partying by the keg is less, since they are split between a couple fields. It was nice for Balcony and the 69'ers to come over at the end with the keg for some rocking keg stand sessions. And there was some rowdy Finn's and Mick's post kickball partying. More than one person was falling over drunk on the sidewalk! And kickball definitely dominated over stand up comedy at Mick's. Whoops.

Dear Snatch...
